KEY DATA

Tentative Release Date: March 28th, 2006

File Under : Jeff Healey / JAZZ / BLUES

- Jeff Healey is Canada's guitar legend—blind since he was three years old, his unorthodox technique and his high-energy power rock earned him multi-million record sales and a world-wide reputation that remains intact today.
- Healey is a musicologist with an encyclopedic knowledge of the work of both jazz and blues artists from the early days of the last century onwards.
- In addition to his guitar work, Healey has become an accomplished trumpet player, deeply influenced by such vital historic figures as Louis Armstrong, Bix Beiderbecke and many others.
- The Jazz Wizards, recreating and reinterpreting the classic jazz of the 20's and 30's have brought Healey to a new audience, and many of his enthusiastic fans in Canada have discovered what is, to them, a new kind of music.
- The album features trombonist and occasional vocalist Chris Barber, one of the few remaining fathers of the British traditional jazz and blues scene. He still leads the Chris Barber Band, now celebrating more than half a century of touring in the UK and Europe.
- Chris Barber created the craze and coined the term Skiffle Music along with Lonnie Donnagan and was the man who first brought legends like Muddy Waters and Sister Rosetta Tharpe to the UK.
- It's Tight Like That was recorded live at sold out performances at the Montreal International Jazz Festival and at Hughs Room, the preeminent acoustic music venue in Toronto.
- In addition to soloing on trumpet and guitar, Healey's band features some of the best known young jazz players in Toronto, as well as vocalist Terra Hazleton.
- Jeff continues his radio career - established on CBC Radio - with his programme "My Kind Of Jazz", now heard twice weekly on Jazz FM in Toronto.
